Provost's Postdoctoral Fellow

University of Notre Dame, Dept. of Computer Science & Engineering

Aug. 2026 – 2028

Notre Dame, IN, USA

- Research on safety-by-construction guardrails and multilingual program synthesis for Code LLMs, mentored by Prof. Joanna C. S. Santos.

Graduate Research Assistant

George Mason University, Dept. of Computer Science

May 2024 – present

Fairfax, VA, USA

- Lead end-to-end LLM development: data curation, pretraining, fine-tuning, and evaluation for code and multilingual settings.
- Author and co-author peer-reviewed papers; present findings at international venues; collaborate across NLP and software engineering teams.

Teaching

Graduate Teaching Assistant

George Mason University, Dept. of Computer Science

Aug. 2021 – May 2024

Fairfax, VA, USA

- Supported four courses over eight semesters: CS 222 (Computer Programming for Engineers), CS 262 (Introduction to Low-Level Programming), and CS 583 (Analysis of Algorithms).

Lecturer, Computer Science

Uttara University

Jan. 2019 – Apr. 2019

Dhaka, Bangladesh

- Taught theory and lab courses (Introduction to Computers, C, C++); participated in computer vision research and student mentoring.

Industry

Software Engineer, RPA & OCR Development

Samsung R&D Institute Bangladesh

Nov. 2019 – Aug. 2021

Dhaka, Bangladesh

- Built production-grade RPA bots and services (Automation Anywhere, UiPath) for international organizations; integrated OCR engines (Tesseract 4, Google Vision, ABBYY, Azure, Tegaki) into IQ Bots with custom Python pipelines. Platforms: Automation Anywhere, UiPath, OpenText, SAP.

TEACHING

Graduate Teaching Assistant, George Mason University (8 semesters, 4 courses)

Analysis of Algorithms (CS 583, graduate)

- Led labs for a required MS/Ph.D. course of 75–90 students. Designed a “buggy-algorithm” lab method in which students diagnose a subtle partitioning bug in a flawed Quicksort, construct a test case that reliably exposes it, and defend their fix, turning assessment into authentic inquiry.

Introduction to Low-Level Programming (CS 262, undergraduate)

- Supported one of the department's most demanding courses (12 labs, 3 projects, midterm, final). Held extended office hours and introduced AI Code Review exercises in which students critique partially working ChatGPT output to find the breaking edge case.

Computer Programming for Engineers / Introduction to Programming (CS 222)

- Taught beginners from varied backgrounds; built a low-stakes environment for recursion by sharing and dissecting my own early buggy attempts to normalize the learning curve.

Course Development (proposed)

- Responsible AI Deployment: an upper-level elective bridging foundational algorithms and AI-augmented practice, covering LLM-assisted code generation, debugging, and the ethics of responsible deployment.

MENTORING

- Jayoti Devi (Ph.D. student, first year): mentorship yielded an ARR submission on AI guardrail and a comprehensive literature review; co-author on CodeGuard (EACL 2026).
- Sadiya Sayara Chowdhury Puspo (Ph.D. student, first year at the time): guidance produced MentalHelp, the largest multitask mental-health dataset of its kind, published at LREC-COLING 2024.
